An Eccentric Staten Island Bachelor Bestroys His Own House.

Mean temperature, 563.

[New York Times.] .
George A. Reed, of Concord, Staten Island, is in jail awaiting trial for arson.
The circumstances of the case are peculiar. About two years ago Reed made an agreement with Mortimer Taxter, an employe of the Staten Island Ferry Company, under which his house and personal property were deeded over to Taxter on condition that he should take care of him so long as Taxter moved into Reed's house, Reed repented of his bargain, but as Tax-ter had secured the transfer papers and in many instances secretly, until it has been kept up, deed he refused to give back the property.

Last Monday evening Mrs. Taxter drove to the village store, leaving her child asleep in the cradle. Reed walked out to meet her on her return, and said that the house was on fire. Mrs. Taxter rushed in to get her child. The flames were spreading rapidly, and the little one was rescued with ulty. Reed, in the mean time, drove the horse into the barn, and after shooting the animal set fire to the building. Before the arrival of Mrs. Taxter he stood on the front stoop of the house with a pistol in his hand, and refused to allow any one to enter. Both the dweiling and the barn were destroyed, with their contents. The premises were in a secluded place, about two miles from the village. Reed used some Giant powder to start the flames.

Reed is sixty years old, and he has lived on Staten Island all his life. His father occupied the homestead before him. Both made baskets for a living. Reed's only excuse is that Taxter had not treated him fairly, and that the agreement did not include the household goods and the horse, The total loss is about $4,000. Reed is an eccentric but temperate old bachelor, and is supposed to have been deranged when mitted the crime.

A Murder Recalled.

The recent Berner fiasco in Cincinnati recalls the murder of Postmaster-General Gresham's father in 1834. He was sheriff of Harrison county, Indiana, and had been notified that one Levi Sipes, a notorious character, who was wanted on a charge of arceny, was attending a ball in the neighborhood. Accompanied by a constable he went to the place, and as soon as Sipes saw him enter the room he put his coat on and slipped out. Sheriff Gresham followed sely and Sipes turned and warned him at he would shoot if he attempted to arrest him, and he did, the bullet entering the temple, producing almost instant death. Not satisfied with shooting, he stabbed him to the heart with a dirk-knife. Sipes was tried and the jury remained out for three days, then brought in a verdict of manslaughter and fixed the penalty at $1,000 fine and twenty-one years' imprisonment. They claimed that the sheriff was ment. They claimed that the sheriff was not required to put his life at stake in the discharge of his official duty. There was no little public indignation at the time, but it soon blew over and Sipes was pardoned before serving his time.
